Deductible and Refundable Building Fee (DDFF) for State Contractors (R1). The rule says that for a "Construction Plan for Residential Structures" issued by a contract manufacturer, "If construction (including the construction of structures and systems associated with structures)" on the project is done directly under contract and is not financed out of federal, state, or local funds but is financed by an interest fee, a deduction is to be deducted from the taxable portion of the bond in accordance with Section 1.9." You will see a new rule under the exemption exception:.. On average, workers in industries where there is a higher proportion of job-based wage disparities - like finance and insurance, retail and food service, and sales and marketing - and where workers in these jobs earn at least twice as much as in jobs with little wage disparities, typically pay over 6 percent less, the report says.. As usual, a number of important updates regarding the construction rule came into effect in the Federal Register on March 19.
